HOW TO USE THE LOCAL THRIVE GUIDE

This local Thrive Guide is designed to help you build a strong network, navigate available resources, and establish a firm foundation of support within your local community.

FIVE & THRIVE IN OUR COMMUNITY

This section will help you to discover local resources related to the five key quality-of-life issues that affect military families: childcare, education, healthcare, housing and spouse employment.

ADDITIONAL BASE RESOURCES

In this section discover additional resources in and around your area including the Military and Family Readiness Center, fitness centers, legal and more! You'll also find a guide to the organizational structure of your installation and a base map.

ADDITIONAL COMMUNITY RESOURCES

In this section discover additional resources within the local community.

If you are looking for national and international resources, be sure to check out the Thrive Guide.

It's a timeless saying that still rings true today: home is wherever the military sends you. It is our honor and pleasure to welcome and connect you with your local Thrive Guide. We are thrilled to have you as part of the Thrive movement and even more so, to share valuable resources with you from your own local community.

This guide was designed to make you feel right at home, helping you navigate everything from childcare, education, healthcare, housing, spouse employment--and more! This local guide is inspired by the Thrive Guide and we hope you will be sure to explore more service wide resources and information at fiveandthrive.org/thrive-guide.

All incredible ideas have a beginning and we would like to extend a special thanks to Kaycee Denny and the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce along with Sheppard Air Force Base for wondering "what if" and pioneering the first iteration of the Local Thrive Guide. Their initiative, hard work--and heart for our families-- has now paved the way for other installations across the force to do something similar, yet unique to their own community, all while ensuring that military families have the support they need--and deserve.

If you have any questions, feedback, or thoughts on how to enhance this guide, please reach out. Afterall, we are in this together.

The Bossier Chamber of Commerce helps build a strong network of Military Community Champions by educating and engaging local businesses on how to support service members and their families—but this work wouldn't be possible without an eager, committed community ready to step up. Together, these partners create welcoming spaces, job opportunities, and family-focused support that strengthen military life. Service members and their families are encouraged to look for and connect with these Military Community Champions throughout the community, knowing they represent a shared commitment to honor and support those who serve.

Helping military communities tackle the top five quality-of-life issues

THE FIVE

CHILDCARE | EDUCATION | HEALTHCARE | HOUSING | SPOUSE EMPLOYMENT

THE WHY

Military family quality of life has strategic implications for our military and national security as it directly impacts recruitment, readiness, and retention.

THE PLAN

Five Lines of Effort:

- ★ Advocate for Quality-of-Life Improvements
- ★ Foster Community Partnerships
- ★ Consolidate Quality-of-Life Resources in One Convenient Location
- ★ Educate Military Families, Leaders, and Community Partners on Existing Efforts and Best Practices
- ★ Promote the Exceptional Value of the Military-Connected Spouse

THE MODEL

Military Community Quality-of-Life Experience (QX)

A positive QX builds a stronger Total Force, improving readiness, recruitment, retention, and resilience. Through collaboration with military leaders, military-connected families, and community partners, our model helps create solutions that empower military members and their families to thrive.

In the trenches of our mission lies a fundamental truth – the strength and readiness of our military families are not just essential components of our societal fabric, they are critical pillars of our national security.

Military Family Resources: Louisiana Department of Education

Resources and support for military families in Louisiana, the new website section offers centralized access to key information and tools designed to ease school transitions for Louisiana's more than 12,000 military-connected students. Online resource hub aimed at supporting military families to navigate the state's public education system. The resource hub includes guidance on advance school enrollment, links to school directories, information about graduation requirements, and details about special education services. It also highlights Louisiana's Purple Star Schools—a designation awarded to schools that go above and beyond to support students from military families.

Note: Louisiana allows military to enroll in advance. If you are moving to Louisiana on active duty orders, your child can register for public school before your family moves to Louisiana. Check for documents needed to enroll on DOE site, link below.

EDUCATION

Jason Rowland,
Superintendent of Bossier Schools

It is my personal privilege to extend a warm welcome to the Bossier Schools family, where we are eager to meet your family and take a personal interest in your child's academic journey and success.

We are a strong military community and you will find the same formidable bond at Bossier Schools, where 25 campuses (and counting) and honored to be Purple Star Schools of Distinction. It is our commitment to not only welcome your children with open arms so they feel connected to their new school from day one, but also provide our military families with the resources needed for a smooth transition.

We encourage you to tap into the expertise of our Military Family Manager Holly George, who understands firsthand the unique challenges you face and how to help navigate them.

At Bossier Schools, our vision is to "WIN the Day" and teach like it matters, because it does. Educators play an influential role in a child's life and it is not a responsibility we take lightly.

I am confident you will find in Bossier what so many others have; an exemplary school system and a friendly, supportive community that welcomes your family to put down roots, whether for a short while or a life time.

Holly George, NBCT Supervisor of Special Programs/Military
Family Manager

Welcome to Bossier Parish Schools! My name is Holly George and I am Bossier School's Supervisor of Special Programs and Military Family Manager. As a former military dependent myself, it is a role I am personally proud of and can relate to, and I look forward to meeting and helping your family have a smooth transition into our school system.

Growing up in a military family, I experienced frequent movement throughout my school years. This continuous transition of relocation and separation left a lasting impression on me and has helped me navigate my life in a positive manner. Now, as a 30+ year educator, I look forward to being your school contact to help ease your family's transition when arriving at Barksdale.

Please call upon me to answer any of your questions about the transition process including registration, special education services, school zones, School of Choice or other concerns. I look forward to being a resource for you and welcoming you to Bossier Schools.

East Reservation Game Warden Video: Best Kept Secret!

East Reservation Housing is located several miles from Barksdale's main base, typically about a 10–15 minute drive depending on the gate used and traffic. The area is more spread out and quieter than main-base housing, offering a neighborhood-style setting with larger green spaces and easier parking. Families often appreciate the lower traffic, playgrounds, walking areas, and quick access to outdoor recreation spots. Because it sits off the main installation, residents should plan for commuting time to base services such as the BX, commissary, and medical clinic. It's a good option for those who want more space and a less congested environment while still staying connected to the base community.

BARKSDALE AIR FORCE BASE

HISTORY OF BARKSDALE AIR FORCE BASE

The story of Barksdale Air Force Base began in 1924, when Shreveport residents first expressed interest in hosting a military airfield. Their efforts involved years of proposals and negotiations, and although the initial plan was rejected, persistence paid off. On December 5, 1928, a site in Bossier Parish was selected from 80 candidates. The City of Shreveport undertook the enormous task of purchasing the property, acquiring more than 800 parcels for $1.5 million, annexing the land, and finally donating it to the federal government. In return, the government assumed responsibility for constructing the new installation.

Construction of Barksdale Field began in 1931, guided by an elegant Beaux-Arts radial site plan and an architectural vision rooted in the French Colonial Revival style. The base's early buildings featured terra-cotta and stucco exteriors, red-tile roofs, French windows, and wrought-iron accents—designs inspired by the region's heritage and local materials. The original plan included quarters for 200 officers, barracks for 1,500 enlisted men, administrative buildings, a gymnasium, a YMCA, a chapel, and hangars large enough to support more than 100 aircraft. Landscape architects called for live oaks along Barksdale Boulevard and native species along adjoining streets, giving the new base a distinctive Southern character.

Barksdale Field was formally established in 1932 and dedicated on February 2, 1933. It was named in honor of Lieutenant Eugene Hoy Barksdale (1896–1926), a distinguished World War I aviator who flew with the British Royal Flying Corps before serving with the American Expeditionary Forces. After the war, he became a U.S. test pilot and tragically lost his life in 1926 during a flight-test accident. Before the base was built, the land had been dominated by cotton plantations, making the installation's development a dramatic transformation of the local landscape. In 1948, with the creation of the United States Air Force, Barksdale Field was officially redesignated Barksdale Air Force Base.

One of the installation's most notable areas is its historic residential district. Constructed between 1930 and 1941, the neighborhood includes single family homes and duplexes originally built for members of the 3rd Attack Group. This French Colonial Revival district was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1992. Damage from the severe winter storms of 2021 led to the demolition of several deteriorated units. Despite these losses, many of the historic homes remain today.

Across the runway, the base's eastern side once housed a separate and highly secretive installation known as Bossier Base. Opened in 1951, it operated independently from Barksdale AFB and was administered by the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project under the Atomic Energy Commission. The facility served as one of only six U.S. stockpile sites for nuclear-weapon components, a fact kept classified until congressional testimony in 1957. As Cold War tensions eased, the mission at Bossier Base diminished, and the facility was officially closed in 1970. Most of its structures were later demolished, though a historical marker—placed in 2015—preserves its legacy. The area is now incorporated into Barksdale's East Reservation.

Nearly a century after its founding, Barksdale continues to stand at the center of U.S. airpower, blending a rich architectural and cultural heritage with a vital modern mission.

BARKSDALE AIR FORCE BASE

THINGS YOU MIGHT NOT KNOW ABOUT BARKSDALE AFB

It's older than the U.S. Air Force. Barksdale Field opened in 1933, 15 years before the Air Force became its own military branch in 1948.

The Barksdale Historic District is the largest historic district in north Louisiana and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. It includes over 300 buildings constructed between 1931 and 1941, showcasing a variety of early 20th-century architectural styles like French Colonial Revival.

The base's original architecture—tile roofs, stucco walls, wrought-iron balconies—gives parts of Barksdale the feel of a "little French village."

The live oaks that line Barksdale Boulevard, and other streets, were planted in the 1930's. The original base housing was built to be fireproof and even earthquake resistant, which was extremely unusual for Louisiana construction in the early 1930s.

The base is home to a massive natural wildlife area: Barksdale's reservation includes more than 18,000 acres of forest, wetlands, and lakes, one of the largest natural habitats on any Air Force installation, supporting deer, bald eagles, wild hogs, and even alligators.

Barksdale maintains one of the longest runways in the Air Force: Its main runway is 11,000 feet long!

Barksdale once served as a stage for Hollywood: The base and B-52 bombers appear in several films and TV productions, including "By Dawn's Early Light" (1990) and documentaries about nuclear deterrence.

President George W. Bush used Barksdale as a secure location on 9/11: Air Force One landed at Barksdale on the day of the attacks, where the president addressed the nation.

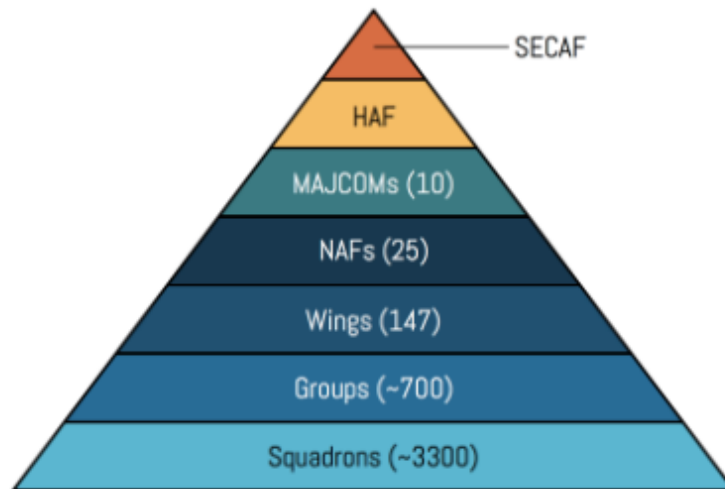

Barksdale is home to the oldest bomb wing in the Air Force: The 2nd Bomb Wing dates back to World War I and still flies the B-52H Stratofortress.

It became the headquarters for nuclear operations in 2009: Barksdale is home to Air Force Global Strike Command, which oversees the majority of the U.S. nuclear arsenal and all Air Force long-range bombers.

The 307th is the only Air Force Reserve unit flying the B-52H Stratofortress, and they also run the Formal Training Unit (FTU)—that means they train new B-52 crews right on Barksdale AFB.

ORGANIZATIONAL CHART

AIR FORCE

The Department of the Air Force is led the Secretary of the Air Force (SECAF), located at the Pentagon.

Headquarters Air Force (HAF), is also based out of the Pentagon, led by the highest-ranking military officer in the Department of the Air Force, the Chief of Staff of the Air Force (CSAF).

The SECAF and CSAF lead the Air Force in working on service-wide issues.

There are eleven Major Commands (MAJCOMs) responsible for organizing, training, and equipping Air Force forces. MAJCOMs are structured by function or geography and are typically led by three- or four-star generals.

- The functional MAJCOMs are: Air Combat Command; Air Education and Training Command; Air Force Global Strike Command; Air Force Materiel Command; Air Force Reserve Command; Air Force Space Command; Air Force Special Operations Command; and Air Force Mobility Command.
- The geographic MAJCOMs are: Pacific Air Forces; United States Air Forces Central Command; and United States Air Forces in Europe–Air Forces Africa.

There are twenty-five Numbered Air Forces (NAFs), which serve as tactical echelons providing operational leadership and oversight of assigned units. NAFs are usually organized by geographic area and are primarily activated during wartime; in peacetime, they typically maintain a small headquarters staff focused on planning and readiness. NAF commanders are generally two- or three-star generals.

Within each NAF are wings, groups, and squadrons, with wings located worldwide. Wings are commanded by brigadier generals or colonels and typically consist of four groups: Operations, Maintenance, Mission Support, and Medical. Groups are usually led by colonels.

Squadrons are the core units of the Air Force, with about 3,300 in total. They are usually led by lieutenant colonels, though some are commanded by majors or captains, and range in size from fewer than 10 to over 600 personnel. Squadrons are highly specialized by mission, such as flying, maintenance, medical, intelligence, security forces, and mission support. While support units rarely deploy as a whole, operational flying squadrons are more likely to deploy intact.

BARKSDALE AIR FORCE BASE

MISSION

Air Force Global Strike Command (AFGS) is charged with developing and providing combat-ready forces for nuclear deterrence and global strike operations ... Safe - Secure – Effective... to support the President of the United States and combatant commanders.

The Eighth Airforce, nicknamed "Mighty Eighth" (8th AF) is a warfighting headquarters constantly ready to deploy global air power and command an air operation wherever needed.

The 2nd Bomb Wing (2 BW) is the host unit at Barksdale Air Force Base, responsible for managing the base's operations related to its B-52 bomber fleet. It oversees all aircraft maintenance, weapons loading, and training, supporting thousands of flying hours and sorties each year. As the cornerstone of the base, 2 BW ensures the readiness of personnel and resources while supporting national defense missions worldwide.

The 307th Bomb Wing is an Air Force Reserve unit flying the B-52 and is the only bomb wing to operate two platforms (B-52 and detached B-1). It also has the only nuclear-certified squadron in the Air Force Reserve Command. The 307th BW is responsible for flying and maintaining 20 B-52 Stratofortress aircraft and provides all initial and requalification training for B-52 aircrew across the entire Air Force.

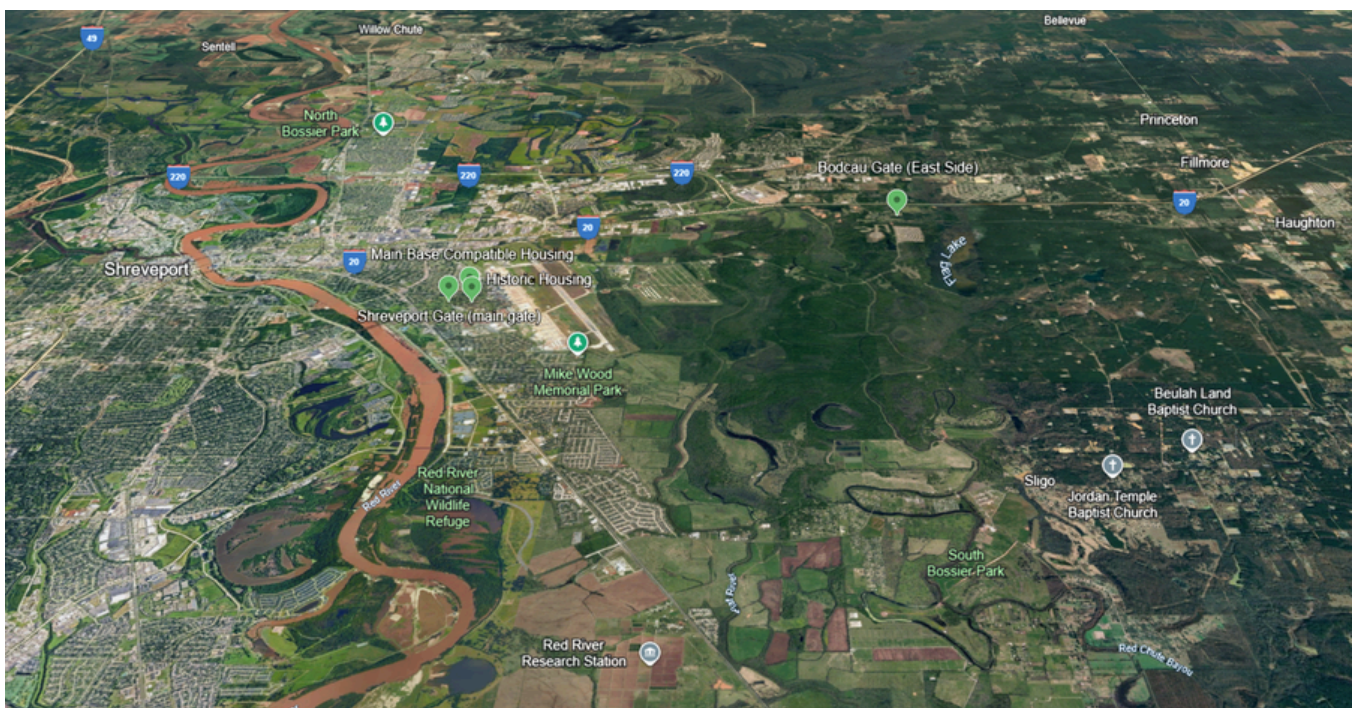

Barksdale AFB is also home to 31 associate units, including Det. 2, 57th Wing (B-52 Weapons School), the 49th Test Squadron (bomber operational testing), and the 548th Combat Training Squadron (Air Warrior II).

The local cuisine reflects Louisiana’s renowned flavors, from Creole and Cajun dishes to classic Southern comfort food. Overall, living near Barksdale AFB provides a supportive military environment, a close-knit community, and a balance of work, recreation, and cultural experiences—all set against the backdrop of Louisiana’s unique charm and warmth.

State Info

Louisiana, reflecting its French heritage, is the only U.S. state with parishes instead of counties, one of just two states not divided into counties (the other is Alaska).

The brown pelican became Louisiana's official bird on July 27, 1966. It nests from South Carolina to Brazil. Pelicans are famous for their large bill, the lower portion of which has a pouch which may be greatly extended.

The large creamy-white bloom of the magnolia tree was designated the state flower in 1900 because of the abundance of trees throughout the state. The magnolia is an evergreen and the flower is usually fragrant. After the six to twelve petals of the flower have fallen away the large cone shaped fruit of the magnolia is exposed.

The official flag of Louisiana consists of a solid blue field, a pelican feeding its young, containing the motto of the state, “Union, Justice and Confidence”. It was adopted by an Act of the Legislature in 1912.

Louisiana’s official state flower is the magnolia blossom, adopted in 1900 for its beauty, fragrance, and its symbolism of the state’s strength and cultural heritage. The specific variety honored is the Southern magnolia (Magnolia grandiflora). In addition, Louisiana recognizes the Louisiana iris (Iris giganticaerulea) as its state wildflower.
